For the past year a small group of parishioners in Hurstbourne Tarrant have been meeting informally to discuss matters of local history. This group is now sufficiently advanced to become a properly constituted society, and to formally launch it there will a public meeting on Tuesday 11th of May starting at 7.45 p.m. at the Church Hall, Ibthorpe Road, Hurstbourne Tarrant. All will be welcome.

The scope of the Society is expected to cover family histories of members (which, of course, are not restricted to the district), events from distant pre-history right through to today, local notables, families, buildings and events, etc; in fact, whatever anybody can think of that has a local link. The definition of Hurstbourne Tarrant is quite elastic since it makes little sense to tie it down to parish boundaries, and so while our interest is centred there it must of necessity spill over into the general district and at times onto the national stage. So if you're interested or just curious, come along and see!
